

Introduction

Fred Alger Management, LLC (“FAM”, “we” or “us”) is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission as an investment adviser. Fees for brokerage and investment advisory services differ among broker-dealers and investment advisers and it is important that you understand the differences. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.

What investment services and advice can you provide me?

We offer investment advisory services to retail investors. We provide both discretionary and non-discretionary investment advisory services to retail investors through mutual funds and hedge funds. Our investment advice is limited to proprietary products. Investments primarily include exchange-listed and over-the-counter equity securities of U.S. and foreign companies. Our discretionary or non-discretionary investment advisory services are generally based on the authority you provide in an investment advisory agreement with us. When you grant us discretionary authority, you provide us with authority to determine the investments to buy and sell in your account on an ongoing basis. You may impose reasonable restrictions on our discretionary authority, which must be provided to us in writing and accepted by us. If you do not provide us with discretion, then we will make recommendations and you will have the final decision regarding whether we purchase or sell investments on your behalf. We generally require a minimum initial and ongoing account size for portfolio management services. We may, in our discretion, waive the asset minimums for a number of reasons.

You may also access a number of our investment strategies through programs sponsored by unaffiliated financial intermediaries, advisers or planners in which we serve as an investment adviser (“wrap programs”). Because of various differences between our regular accounts and our wrap programs, the wrap programs are managed slightly differently. These differences are discussed in Items 4 and 12 of our Form ADV, Part 2A. Given the structure of the wrap program and the fact that we receive payments directly from the wrap sponsor, we do not believe we receive any direct compensation from you if you participate in the wrap program. The wrap sponsor is responsible for billing and collecting any fees owed by you to the wrap sponsor pursuant to such accounts’ participation in the wrap program. Your ability to allocate, reallocate or redeem your investment in the strategy under the wrap program is governed by the terms of your agreement with the wrap sponsor and as is disclosed by the wrap sponsor. Any termination-related provisions would be found in the agreement between you and the wrap sponsor.

Ask us questions to help you better understand our services: Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Why or why not? How will you choose investments to recommend to me? What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?

Carefully review our Form ADV, Part 2A Brochure, particularly Items 4, 7 and 12, to understand the services we provide.

What fees will I pay?

We generally charge a percentage of assets under management for portfolio management services. These fees are generally assessed on a monthly or quarterly basis, in arrears. You should be aware that the more assets there are in your account, the more you will pay in fees. This means we have an incentive to encourage you to increase the assets in your account.

We currently have clients from whom we receive performance-based fees in which we receive a portion of the investment gains in the accounts, in addition to advisory fees. These clients include separate accounts, mutual funds and hedge funds. These performance-based fees arrangements create an incentive for us to recommend investments that may be riskier or more speculative than those investments that would be recommended under a different fee arrangement.

You should review Item 5 of our Form ADV, Part 2A for our standard separate account fee schedules. The fees and other contractual arrangements for investing in our mutual funds and hedge funds are described in the prospectus or other offering documents for each such vehicle and differ from the separate account fees described in our Form ADV, Part 2A.

Asset-based fees associated with a wrap fee program will include most transaction costs and fees paid to a broker-dealer or bank that has custody of the assets, and therefore are higher than a typical asset-based advisory fee. For our services in wrap programs, our fee generally ranges between 0.25% and 0.50% of an account’s market value annually.

In addition to our fees, you may incur additional fees and costs related to the investments in your account, such as custodian fees, account maintenance fees, transaction costs, surrender charges, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, internal management fees of mutual funds and variable annuities, and other product related fees such as redemption fees.

Ask us questions to help you better understand the impact of fees and costs on investments: Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments? If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

Carefully review our Form ADV, Part 2A Brochure, particularly Items 5, 6 and 12, to understand the fees and costs you will pay.

What are your legal obligations to me when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we act as your investment adviser, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the investment advice we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means.

We rely primarily on our own internal research to provide primary research in connection with our selection of securities; however, we also purchase research and execution services with commission dollars generated by investment transactions in your accounts. This is a conflict of interest because we have an incentive to use broker dealers who allow us to use your commission dollars to purchase research and execution services rather than other broker dealers who do not allow us to commission dollars. We also have an incentive to arrange more transactions in your accounts because the more frequently your accounts are traded the more commissions we generate to use for our purchase of research and execution services.

We receive client referrals from third parties to whom we pay referral fees. This is a conflict of interest because we have an incentive to pay referral fees so that the third parties will refer clients to us that they otherwise might not refer to us.

We have an affiliated business that is a broker-dealer. This is a conflict of interest because our affiliated business receives additional compensation for providing these other services to you. We have an incentive to recommend and provide these other services to you.

We have an affiliated business that is another investment adviser. This is a conflict of interest because our affiliated business receives compensation for providing these other services to you. We have an incentive to recommend and provide these other services to you.

Ask us questions to help you better understand our conflicts of interest: How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

Carefully review our Form ADV, Part 2A Brochure, particularly Items 10, 11, 12 and 14, for more detailed information about our conflicts of interest.

How do your financial professionals make money?

Our financial professionals receive a salary and a discretionary bonus based on, among other factors, their individual performance and the success of the firm.

We also give key personnel the opportunity to share in our long-term growth and profitability through The Alger Profit Participation Plan (“PPP”). Senior members of the firm are eligible to receive “awards” annually in the PPP. The awards track the returns of our mutual funds and have a four-year vesting schedule. The total award earned can increase or decrease with our investment and earnings growth over the four-year period.

We also incentivize key investment and non-investment executives through a phantom equity program that grants pro-rata rights to growth in our book value, dividend payments and participation in any significant corporate transactions (e.g. partial sale, initial public offering, merger, etc.).

The compensation structure is a conflict of interest because our financial professionals have an incentive to encourage a retail investor to increase the assets in a retail investor’s accounts.

Do you or your financial professionals have legal or disciplinary history?

Yes, please visit Investor.gov/CRS for a free and simple search tool to research our firm and our financial professionals.

Ask us questions to help you better understand our disciplinary history: As a financial professional, do you have any disciplinary history? For what type of conduct?

(4) Advisory Business:

Introduction

FAM has been an independent, privately owned firm since its inception in October 1964. FAM is wholly-owned by Alger Group Holdings, LLC (“AGH”), which, in turn, is wholly-owned by Alger Associates, Inc. (“AAI”). Alexandra D. Alger, Hilary M. Alger and Nicole D. Alger together own in the aggregate in excess of 99% of the common stock of AAI.

FAM provides both discretionary and non-discretionary investment advisory services to institutional investors through separate accounts, U.S. and foreign registered and privately offered funds, as well as through a third-party sponsored bank collective investment trust; and to retail investors through wrap programs and U.S. and foreign registered pooled investment vehicles. FAM’s investments primarily include exchange-listed and over-the-counter equity securities of U.S. and foreign companies. To a lesser extent, FAM also provides investment advice with respect to other securities, including options contracts on various securities and securities indices and warrants, private placements, convertible securities, corporate debt securities, mutual fund shares, United States Government and Agency securities and currency contracts. FAM is also registered as an investment adviser in Australia, Ireland, and Canada.

FAM offers multiple investment strategies, including Spectra, Capital Appreciation, Socially Responsible (“SRI”) Capital Appreciation, Focus Equity, Large Cap Growth, Alger 25, Alger 35, Dynamic Opportunities, Dynamic Return, Growth & Income, Mid Cap Growth, Mid Cap Focus, Specialized Growth (through its affiliate Weatherbie Capital, LLC), Small Cap Growth, Small Cap Focus, Global Focus, International Focus, Emerging Markets, Health Sciences, Responsible Investing, and Balanced.

Clients, relevant laws, rules, or regulations may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities, certain types of securities, or the percentage of ownership in any single security that FAM can make. In addition, each of FAM’s strategies follows a specific investment discipline with their own portfolio construction parameters. Accordingly, FAM will not enter into an advisory relationship with any prospective client whose investment objectives are incompatible with FAM’s investment philosophy or strategies or who seeks to impose unduly restrictive guidelines.

Limited Availability of Small Cap Focus Strategy:

The Small Cap Focus strategy is currently available only on a limited basis. For pooled vehicles, including the U.S. mutual fund and SICAV, subscriptions are limited to new and existing shareholders, investors using certain intermediaries, and/or certain investor types. For individual investors utilizing discretionary or non-discretionary separate accounts, the Small Cap Focus strategy will only be available at certain intermediaries. For institutional investors, capacity for additional separate accounts will be limited at the discretion of FAM.

Wrap Fee Programs

Clients may also access a number of FAM’s investment strategies through programs sponsored by unaffiliated financial intermediaries, advisers or planners in which FAM serves as an investment adviser (“wrap programs”). The wrap programs for which FAM serves as a Portfolio Manager are listed in Section 5.I.(2) of FAM’s Form ADV Part 1, a copy of which is available either 1) on request or 2) on the Securities and Exchange Commission’s website at the following link:

https://www.adviserinfo.sec.gov/IAPD/IAPDFirmSummary.aspx?ORG_PK=106750

In managing accounts in a wrap program, FAM seeks to avoid investing in illiquid or foreign securities, which are not traded on a U.S. exchange, and such accounts will also not participate in allocations of initial public offerings. FAM is also sensitive to the tax status of the investor, and attempts to minimize the tax impact of portfolio transactions. Finally, FAM will seek to avoid purchasing partnerships for wrap clients as a result of the tax implications of such investments. In an effort to minimize the volume for trading for accounts in a wrap program, FAM may have a minimum position size for a transaction. Such minimum position size may not exist for non-wrap accounts.

Additionally, because wrap clients generally pay the wrap sponsor to effect transactions for their accounts, FAM generally does not aggregate transactions on behalf of wrap program accounts with other accounts or funds it advises. Because of the distinct trading process FAM follows for wrap accounts and the portfolio limitations discussed above, the timing of trades for wrap accounts may differ from other accounts and will generally be made later in time than for other accounts managed by FAM (see Item 12: Brokerage Practices, for details about FAM’s trading practices for wrap accounts). Further, FAM maintains relationships with multiple sponsors, and transactions through different sponsors are also not aggregated. As a result of limitations imposed by such sponsors, trades placed by FAM for wrap accounts are on a “rotational” basis among all sponsors. Trade allocation of the wrap programs is discussed in more detail in Item 12: Brokerage Practices.

The practices described above may cause a wrap program account’s performance to diverge from another account managed by FAM according to the same strategy.

With respect to wrap program accounts subject to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended (“ERISA” and such accounts “Plan Accounts”), FAM provides services both as a registered investment adviser under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended (the “Advisers Act”) and as a fiduciary as that term is defined in Section 3(21)(A) of ERISA with respect to the Plan Accounts. Under these arrangements, FAM is selected on behalf of the Plan Accounts by the wrap sponsor or by a plan fiduciary other than FAM or its affiliates to supervise and direct the investment of certain assets of the Plan Accounts, in accordance with the investment strategy selected for the Plan Accounts. FAM may also, from time to time, perform certain related services in respect of the supervision and direction of the investment of such assets of the Plan Accounts and in relation to the wrap program. These may include, for example, account reconciliation, data management, provisions of research or market-related information or other customary ancillary services. These additional services are provided at no cost to the wrap sponsor or any Plan Account.

Given the structure of the wrap program and the fact that payments to FAM are paid directly by the wrap sponsor, FAM does not believe it receives any direct compensation from clients who participate in the wrap programs (including Plan Accounts). The wrap sponsor is responsible for billing and collecting any fees owed by clients to the wrap sponsor pursuant to such accounts' participation in the wrap program.

Each client's ability to allocate, reallocate or redeem its investment in the strategy under the wrap program is governed by the terms of the client's agreement with the wrap sponsor and as is disclosed by the wrap sponsor. Any termination-related provisions would be found in the agreement between the client and the wrap sponsor.

As discussed below under the heading "Custodial and Brokerage Fees", with respect to the wrap program, FAM does not direct client brokerage transactions, including those of the Plan Accounts, to any broker-dealer in exchange for products and services (e.g., research) or otherwise participate in "soft dollar" arrangements.

FAM offers advisory services through the following types of wrap programs:

Single Contract Program

In Single Contract Wrap Programs, clients generally pay the sponsor a single fee (the wrap fee), FAM receives a percentage of the wrap fee for its services from the sponsor, and the sponsor executes trades and administers the account without additional charges. Each client enters into an agreement with the sponsor of the wrap program, and each investment manager available in the program maintains a sub-advisory agreement with the sponsor of the wrap program, to provide discretionary advisory services to the clients.

Dual Contract Program

In Dual Contract Wrap Programs, sponsors offer clients a package of services including trade execution and account administration and clients generally pay FAM for its investment management services. FAM is directed by clients in these wrap programs to effect transactions for their accounts through the program sponsor or the sponsor's broker-dealer affiliate. Fees and services are unbundled and FAM enters into an investment advisory agreement with the client, who then enters into a separate contract with the sponsor, which covers custodian, brokerage and other service provider fees. Although fees and services are unbundled, clients do not pay FAM directly for its investment management services, but instead direct payments through the program sponsor or the sponsor's broker-dealer affiliate.

Model Portfolio Program

In a Model Portfolio Program, FAM enters into an agreement with the sponsor to provide an initial model portfolio, which the sponsor then seeks to replicate for its clients. FAM will then regularly provide updated model portfolio information to sponsors. FAM does not place trades on behalf of accounts in these programs and therefore has no ability to ensure that accounts conform to the model portfolio provided. Trades for model portfolios may be placed by the sponsor after FAM has placed trades for wrap programs and other clients for which it serves as investment adviser. FAM provides a model portfolio to the wrap program sponsor to duplicate on behalf of the client.

Client Assets Under Management

As of December 31, 2019, FAM managed $25,473,362,777 of client assets on a discretionary basis, and $882,206,926 of client assets on a non-discretionary basis.

(5) Fees and Compensation:

FAM is generally paid an advisory fee, calculated as a percentage of assets under management. FAM's standard fee schedules are presented below. Fees are negotiable, and as a result, potential or existing clients may pay higher or lower fees than noted below and one client may pay a higher fee to FAM than a second client who is receiving substantially similar services. For example, FAM generally applies an alternate schedule with lower fees to clients whose assets under management ("AUM") is greater than $100 million. In addition, there are many other factors which could lead to a client paying a fee which deviates from the standard fee schedule or from a different client who is receiving substantially similar services. Such factors may include, but are not limited to, the level of investment management activity and supervision required, the size of the client's account, the number of client accounts managed, the length of the relationship, the nature of the discretionary service provided, the types of investment guidelines and restrictions applicable to the account, the level of client service required, or FAM's addition of a new strategy or attempt to increase assets in an existing strategy or in a new distribution channel. In addition, as is more fully discussed below, some clients may pay FAM a performance based fee for its services.

Clients are generally billed in arrears either on a monthly or quarterly basis with billing generally based on the account total market value at the end of the billing periods or the average net asset value over the billing period. With respect to the clients that are billed in advance, if the advisory contract is terminated before the end of the billing period, FAM will generally refund a pro-rata portion of the advisory fee.

Employees and affiliates of FAM may hire FAM, and may be charged reduced or no advisory fees. Wrap account clients are generally billed by the wrap program sponsor, with a portion of such fee paid to FAM as discussed below.

Additionally, FAM's standard fee schedule offered for separately managed institutional Alger 25 and Alger 35 strategy accounts is as follows: 0.30% base fee plus a performance fee of 0.01% for each 0.10% of the outperformance of the account over the S&P 500 Index (benchmark) up to a total maximum fee of 0.80%.

Wrap Program Fee Structures

For its services in wrap programs, FAM's fee generally ranges between 0.25% and 0.50% of an account's market value annually.

Pooled Investment Vehicles

FAM also provides investment advisory services to both registered and unregistered pooled investment vehicles. The fees and other contractual arrangements for each of these vehicles are described in the prospectus or other offering documents for each such vehicle and differ from the separate account fees described above.

Custodial and Brokerage Fees

Each client (other than wrap program clients described above) must select a custodian (generally a bank or broker-dealer) to provide custodial services in connection with the management of its account. The cost of these services is not included in FAM's advisory fees. Clients will also be responsible for paying any additional costs charged by custodians. These additional costs may include, but are not limited to:

- Costs relating to exchanging foreign currencies
- Odd lot differentials
- Regulatory fees (e.g., fees charged by the SEC)
- Transfer taxes, exchange fees, wire transfer fees, postage fees, auction fees, foreign clearing and settlement fees, and other fees or taxes required by law.
- Mutual fund expenses

FAM's advisory fees also generally do not include the costs, expenses or commissions that a broker or dealer may charge in connection with transactions executed on behalf of an account. Brokerage is discussed in more detail in Item 12: Brokerage Practices. These brokerage costs are generally borne directly by clients. FAM's fees also do not cover mark-ups and mark-downs or dealer spreads that broker-dealers may receive when acting as principal in certain transactions, or the amount of any annual retirement plan fees, or the fees and expenses a client may incur as a shareholder of a mutual fund.

For wrap program accounts, FAM generally does not negotiate brokerage commissions or other costs related to the execution of trades because those charges are generally included in the single fee paid by the client to the sponsor, and the client has generally contractually agreed to execute trades through the wrap sponsor. In the event that FAM was to pick a broker-dealer other than the sponsor, the client would typically pay a commission, concession, or dealer mark-up or mark-down, in addition to the wrap fee paid to the sponsor as well as other administrative fees to settle such a transaction.

Brokerage Through FAC

Fred Alger & Company, LLC ("FAC"), an affiliate of FAM, is a registered broker-dealer. FAC does not conduct public brokerage business and generally limits its execution services to acting as a broker-dealer for trades placed on behalf of FAM clients. Subject to the requirements of applicable law, it is at the client's discretion whether FAC will be included among other non-affiliated broker-dealers selected by FAM for trade execution. FAM does not reduce its advisory fees to offset any commission fees FAC charges. Consistent with its obligation to provide best execution, on a regular basis, FAM evaluates whether the commissions, rates and fees charged by FAC are commercially reasonable. FAM has some accounts with alternative arrangements regarding commissions. For certain accounts, FAM does not charge management fees and instead, FAC collects a fee based on the transactions in the account. For other accounts, FAM charges only a fixed annual advisory fee and no commissions are charged. Information about FAM's conflicts related to its affiliates, such as FAC, is described more fully below in Item 10: Other Financial Activities and Affiliations.

Further, Clients may instruct FAM to place trades to specific non-affiliated broker-dealers.

Investment Vehicle Fees

Investors may access FAM's capabilities through U.S. and foreign registered and privately offered pooled investment vehicles advised or sub-advised by FAM. In such cases, FAM or its affiliates may receive, in addition to advisory fees, performance-based, shareholder servicing, administration, co-administration and/or distribution fees directly from the vehicles, from the investors in the vehicles, and/or from other investment advisers' mutual funds for which FAM acts as an adviser or sub-adviser. The fees and other contractual arrangements for each of these vehicles are described in the prospectus or other offering documents for each such vehicle and differ from the separate account fees described above.

Subject to requirements of applicable law and the consent of each client (if applicable), FAM may invest its client assets in pooled investment vehicles managed by FAM or its affiliates, up to the limits permitted under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended. In the event of investment of a client's assets in such pooled vehicles, FAM will take steps to avoid having the client pay duplicative fees. There can be no assurance, however, that duplicative fees will not be charged.

Compensation for the Sale of Securities and Other Investment Products

While FAM generally does not receive compensation for sales of FAM-advised investment products, FAC serves as the principal underwriter for certain mutual funds advised by FAM and generally receives an asset-based fee for distribution or shareholder servicing from the funds advised by FAM. Additionally, FAC may also receive fees related to initial sales charges or contingent deferred sales charges of certain share classes of funds advised by FAM.

FAC sales personnel may receive as compensation a portion of the fees earned by FAM as well as a portion of the fees received by FAC. Such compensation may be higher for some products or services than others and thus the incentive to sell those products may be greater.

To the extent FAM offers its services through investment products such as mutual funds, clients may purchase these products through brokers or agents that are not affiliated with FAM. FAM may enter into revenue-sharing arrangements or other types of fee sharing arrangements with these brokers or agents and such arrangements differ depending on the broker-dealer or agent. A purchase or sale through a given broker or agent therefore may result in greater profit to FAM than a purchase or sale through another, depending on the particular revenue-sharing arrangement.

(6) Performance Based Fees and Side-by-Side Management:

FAM currently has clients from whom it receives performance-based fees, in addition to advisory fees. These clients include separate accounts and registered and unregistered pooled investment vehicles. These accounts are managed by personnel of FAM who also have portfolio management responsibilities to accounts for which only asset-based advisory fees are received. FAM's fee rate will increase based on the performance of performance fee based accounts, whereas FAM's fee rate with respect to non-performance fee based accounts remains the same regardless of the accounts' performance. As a result, in situations where FAM personnel have portfolio management responsibilities for both performance fee based accounts and non-performance fee based accounts, an inherent conflict of interest is present.

To mitigate these conflicts, FAM's policies and procedures seek to ensure that investment personnel make decisions based on the best interests of clients, without consideration of FAM's economic or pecuniary interests. Please see Item 12: Brokerage Practices for more information about FAM's trading aggregation, allocation, and best execution policies. Trades for performance fee based accounts are reviewed periodically to ensure such accounts are not systematically favored.

(7) Types of Clients:

FAM offers investment advice to religious organizations, foundations/endowments, corporate pensions, public plans, Taft-Hartley clients, sub-advisory clients, and other types of institutional investors and platforms. FAM also offers investment advice to individual investors through separately managed accounts (including wrap fee programs).

FAM's clients also include various taxable and tax-exempt institutions, and publicly and privately offered pooled investment vehicles, both domestic and foreign.

FAM typically requires a minimum asset size of $10 million for separate account advisory services (other than wrap program accounts). FAM may, in its discretion, waive the asset minimum for a number of reasons, including, but not limited to, clients or consultants having multiple relationships with FAM, specialty asset class assignments such as socially responsible mandates, or clients who are willing to pay the fee equivalent of the minimum asset size. FAM may also waive the asset minimum when it is adding a new strategy or trying to increase assets in an existing strategy or distribution channel. FAM generally requires a minimum asset size of $100,000 for wrap program accounts, which may be waived in some cases (see Item 5: Fees and Compensation).

Minimum investments for mutual fund shares and interests in privately offered pooled investment vehicles are listed in the offering material for each such fund or vehicle.

(8) Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss:

FAM's Capital Appreciation, Focus Equity, Dynamic Return, Dynamic Opportunities, Emerging Markets, Health Sciences, Large Cap Growth, Mid Cap Growth, Mid Cap Focus, Small Cap Growth, Small Cap Focus, Specialized Growth, Spectra, SRI Capital Appreciation, Balanced, Responsible Investing, Alger 25, and Alger 35 strategies generally follow the philosophy and investment process described below:

Our Philosophy

Since FAM's founding in 1964, we have focused on investing in companies undergoing Positive Dynamic Change, which we believe offer the best investment opportunities. We seek to identify change in both "traditional" growth companies and in companies experiencing a "growth renaissance."

We define Positive Dynamic Change as:

Companies experiencing High Unit Volume Growth: ‘Traditional’ growth companies that are established or emerging and are experiencing growing demand, have a strong business model or have market dominance.

Companies undergoing Positive Life Cycle Change: A catalyst drives these companies to experience a “growth renaissance,” resulting in improving earnings leading to P/E expansion. Companies experiencing Positive Lifecycle Change may be benefitting from a new product introduction a regulatory change or new management

Our Process

Research is the foundation of FAM’s investment process and robust idea generation is a key component of our long-term success. FAM’s focus on growth investing and belief that companies undergoing “Positive Dynamic Change” offer the best investment opportunities is the lens through which we view potential investment opportunities.

FAM’s investment team’s search for new investment ideas derives from multiple sources including, but not limited to: meetings with company management, industry seminars, independent research and analysis, and frequent discussions with customers, suppliers, and competitors.

Analysis

At FAM, we seek to identify and analyze change occurring in sectors, industries, and companies. We concentrate on seeking an understanding of the underlying drivers of change, including, among other things, technological advances, evolving customer preferences, and new government regulations.

Qualitative Evaluation

As our analysts seek to identify companies with the potential for significant change, there are two main ways their skills are used. The first is conducting bottom up fundamental analysis. Our team seeks to find investments that are out of favor and under performers by, among other things, investigating the customer demand for a new product or service or a company’s source of competitive advantage such as intellectual property, brand, platform, or management capability. Our analysts may meet with industry participants and may design and conduct surveys to, for example, gauge market potential and customer feedback for a product or service.

Quantitative Evaluation

The second way we develop a differentiated view is analytical and includes, in part, building models of a company, many times at the division, product or country level in order to seek a differentiated perspective relative to other investors. This could come from more detailed modeling of the building blocks of demand rather than simply assuming revenue growth rates.

FAM analyst financial models specific to a company’s key drivers typically include:

- Multi-scenario analysis of income statement, balance sheet, and cash flow models
- Valuation analysis based on discounted cash flows (e.g., EV/FCF) and comparable industry multiples (e.g., EV/EBITDA, Price/Sales, and Price/Earnings)

Scenario Forecasting

In addition to forecasting the most likely outcome, a ‘base-case’ model, analysts will typically develop bull-(best) and bear-(worst) case models and price targets.

FAM’s scenario forecasting is a framework for dialogue between the portfolio manager and analysts as they assess the relative expected return and risk of each current or potential holding in the portfolio. Models are generally updated to aid in monitoring the realization of the investment thesis. For example, a stock whose key drivers are unchanged and has surpassed its base-case price target and is nearing its bull-case price target may be a candidate for sale whereas a stock that is trading down toward its bear-case price target may be a candidate to add to.

Dialogue

For new ideas, analysts generally provide the portfolio manager(s) with an executive summary of their investment thesis in person and through publication on FAM’s research database. Generally included is the rationale for purchase, key drivers and catalysts, financial models and risk measurements, and any other data that may be pertinent to the buy decision. The portfolio manager(s) and analyst generally discuss the merits of the investment thesis and review the underlying assumptions in detail. In order to build conviction for a new idea, analysts often invite portfolio manager(s) to participate in meetings with company managements.

After this collaborative process, the portfolio manager(s) ultimately determine whether the investment is appropriate for the portfolio, and at what position size. On an ongoing basis, FAM’s analysts seek to constantly communicate with portfolio managers on developments in their securities, industries or sectors.

When a strategy is co-managed, the responsibilities of such portfolio managers may be shared, divided or otherwise assigned based on various factors including, but not limited to, level of strategy assets to be managed, their experience, their sector expertise, and such other factors as FAM believes is most efficient and effective. In all cases, each portfolio manager collaborates with the other portfolio manager(s) and analysts to develop overall strategy, outlook, and themes; which impact industry, sector and security allocations in the strategy. Responsibilities amongst portfolio managers may be fully or partially allocated to one of the portfolio managers for the purposes of day-to-day portfolio management and stock selection, implementation of trades, strategic and performance oversight, risk management, or oversight of guidelines; whether externally driven or internally developed by FAM.

Certain portfolio managers work with dedicated analysts who supplement the FAM research database with their own research. Additionally, for certain strategies, such as the Small Cap Focus, Global Focus, International Focus, Emerging Markets, Health Sciences and Responsible Investing strategies, a team of dedicated analysts who specialize in such strategies review and recommend investment opportunities to the portfolio managers responsible for such strategies.

Environmental, Social, Governance (“ESG”)

FAM’s firm-wide ESG approach is broadly utilized by the investment team. FAM’s aim is to further ESG analysis of certain owned issuers, with the goal of more in-depth and comprehensive understanding of the company, in addition to facilitating communication with the issuer regarding ESG considerations.

Currently, FAM uses third-party firms and other means, to provide information and guidance on ESG considerations at a sector, industry or security specific level. FAM may change the sources for such information, including by selecting other third-party firms, using company provided information or performing internal assessments.

FAM’s analysts are provided with reports and ratings of all securities (where the information is available) owned across all current FAM strategies. They receive company and industry reports and custom alerts configured for each analyst to receive ESG-related updates for all companies in their coverage. FAM’s current assets under management are biased towards larger cap companies, thus, much of the ESG work conducted is oriented to these companies. If a company that is a top holding (when aggregated across all of FAM’s strategies) were to have a low ESG rating, the analyst covering such company may take certain steps to better understand the rating, including meeting with the company in question, preparing reports on any findings to be included in FAM’s research database, providing any findings to the investment team generally, and reporting any findings to relevant portfolio managers. Portfolio managers may utilize any reports, ratings, and analyst follow-up in making their investment decisions regarding securities in their strategies.

FAM’s Chief Executive Officer and Chief Investment Officer has ultimate oversight for the implementation of FAM’s ESG policy. A group of senior personnel at FAM support him, overseeing the ESG initiative.

Additional Information about Certain Strategies:

Certain strategies which follow the investment philosophy and process described above are subject to additional constraints or considerations when selecting their investments. For example: the Responsible Investing strategy considers a company’s environmental, social and governance practices, among other factors; the Emerging Markets strategy considers its allocation among emerging market economies; the Health Sciences strategy invests primarily in health-related industries; the Balanced strategy considers its allocation among equity and fixed income instruments; and Spectra, Dynamic Opportunities, and Dynamic Return strategies seek opportunities to short securities which FAM believes may decrease in value, or for hedging purposes. More detailed information about additional considerations for FAM’s strategies can be found below as well as at www.alger.com.

Growth & Income:

Growth & Income strategy invests primarily in equity securities such as common or preferred stocks which FAM believes offer opportunities for capital appreciation and which also pay dividends. In considering such companies, FAM classifies them into three categories: Dividend Leaders – companies that generate high dividend yields; Dividend Growers – companies that have a history of strong and consistent dividend growth; and Kings of Cash Flow – companies that have strong potential for generating capital appreciation and the ability to return significant amounts of cash to investors as a result of their free cash flow.

International Focus, Global Focus and Emerging Markets:

International Focus, Global Focus and Emerging Markets strategies invest in companies that FAM believes are attractively valued, high quality growth companies. Each company is evaluated for its competitive advantage, growth prospects, growth catalysts, management team, valuation and risks. The portfolios are constructed through a bottom-up, fundamentally driven approach within a macro country/sector/industry framework and are made up of FAM's highest conviction, best ideas. The strategies are all-cap, all-country, opportunistic focused strategies.

Focus Strategies:

Focus Equity, Alger 25, Alger 35, Mid Cap Focus, Specialized Growth, Small Cap Focus, Global Focus, International Focus, and Emerging Markets strategies typically hold between 25 to 50 holdings identified through fundamental research as demonstrating promising growth potential. The focus strategies may invest a significant portion of their assets in securities of companies conducting business within a single sector. The number of securities held in these strategies may occasionally exceed this range for a variety of reasons such as market conditions and an initial offering investment.

Risk Controls

FAM endeavors to control and monitor portfolio risk by seeking to ensure that all of its portfolios are comprised of securities where its analysts have a high degree of conviction. FAM's investment philosophy and proprietary research capabilities are designed to help FAM try to mitigate risk by thoroughly understanding the securities in its portfolios. Through careful securities selection, diversification of holdings (certain FAM strategies, however, may not be diversified or may be considered 'concentrated') and our investment process, FAM seeks to maintain the desired portfolio characteristics that our Portfolio Managers expect while managing overall risk.

FAM's Portfolio Managers and analysts monitor securities held in client accounts. Portfolio Managers monitor changes at the portfolio, industry and economic level and analysts focus on the specific companies. As FAM is a bottom-up securities selector, the portfolio weighting in a particular industry or an economic sector is generally the result of individual security selection.

FAM manages multiple strategies and clients that, at times, can have exposure to a company through ownership of common stock, debt, warrants or other securities issued by the same company. When such situations exist, FAM will take steps to identify any potential conflicts, seek to mitigate any such conflicts and provide adequate disclosures and reporting to clients.

FAM additionally analyzes each portfolio and considers a number of measures, including attribution analysis, to help the Portfolio Managers to fully understand certain risk parameters of their portfolios. FAM also uses other tools to monitor the risk profile of portfolios versus their relevant benchmarks. FAM does not actively manage a portfolio's sector exposures, but uses such reports to seek to understand portfolio characteristics and any unintentional exposure.

Under normal market conditions, for certain strategies FAM generally limits exposure in any one economic sector to 40% of a portfolio, exposure to any one industry to 20% of a portfolio, and exposure to any single security to 10% of the portfolio. These sector and industry limits are generally based on third party determinations (e.g. Global Industry Classification Standard (“GICS”)) regarding how a security is classified. For certain of our Focus strategies, generally those with 25 to 50 holdings, FAM may have no sector, industry, or individual security limits. Under normal market conditions, certain strategies may generally limit exposure in any one economic sector to 50% of a portfolio, exposure to any one industry to 25% of a portfolio, and exposure to any single security to 10% of the portfolio, at purchase. FAM may deviate from these limits when, for example, it believes that a sector/industry/stock is undergoing profound change; offers what it thinks is a compelling opportunity; represents a larger percentage of an applicable benchmark; or it is weighted highly on an applicable benchmark.

Notwithstanding the extensive risk control measures FAM has in place, it is important for clients to consider the risk of loss associated with investing in securities, and the particular risks associated with their accounts. All clients should recognize that investing in securities involves the risk of loss.

General Risks

As with any account that invests in equity securities, an investment held in an account advised by FAM will fluctuate in value due to changes in the market prices of its investments. The loss of your investment is a risk of investing. In addition, the account’s investments may not grow as fast as the rate of inflation and equity securities tend to be more volatile than some other investments you could make.

Prices of growth stocks tend to be higher in relation to their companies’ earnings and may be more sensitive to market, political and economic developments than other stocks, making their prices more volatile. An investment advised by FAM may be better suited to investors who can tolerate fluctuations in their investment’s value.

The following risks apply generally to strategies managed by FAM:

Risks of Investing in Small and Medium-Cap Issuers

Investing in securities of smaller capitalization companies may involve greater volatility than investing in larger more established companies because smaller capitalization companies can be subject to more dramatic and volatile share price changes than larger, more established companies due to investor perceptions of the issuing company’s earnings growth potential. Small- and medium-cap issuers may have limited product lines, financial resources, or management depth. Investing in securities issued by such companies may pose a greater risk than investing in securities issued by larger, more established issuers. It may be significantly more difficult to liquidate a position in a smaller cap security, owing to potentially less frequent trading of these securities.

Diversification

A client’s account may be exposed to market risk due to many factors, including the movements in interest rates, indexes, market volatility, and security values underlying these instruments. A client's portfolio may at certain times hold a few security positions that are relatively large in relation to its capital, with the result that a loss in any such position could have a material adverse impact on a client's portfolio.

Initial Public Offerings ("IPO") or ("New Issues") Risk

New Issues or IPOs occur when shares of a company are issued for the first time on a stock exchange for public investment. Risks associated with purchasing a New Issue include a lack of publicly available historical information about the company, lack of trading history, increased volatility, and no quarterly financial filings with the SEC to enable the level of in-depth, fundamental research that can be conducted on a company that is already public.

Sector Risk

Accounts invested in certain strategies may have a significant portion of their assets allocated to securities of companies conducting business within a single sector. Companies in the same sector may be similarly affected by economic, regulatory, political or market events or conditions, which may make the strategy's returns more vulnerable to unfavorable developments in that sector than a strategy that has a more diversified portfolio. Generally, the more broadly a strategy invests, the more it spreads risk and potentially reduces the risks of loss and volatility.

Technology Sector Risk

Certain technology related companies may face special risks that their products or services may not prove to be commercially successful. Technology related companies are also strongly affected by worldwide scientific or technological developments. As a result, their products may rapidly become obsolete. Such companies are also often subject to governmental regulation and may, therefore, be adversely affected by governmental policies. These factors may lead to limited earnings and/or failing profit margins. As a result, the value of technology related companies' securities may fall or fail to rise. In addition, many technology-related companies' securities have historically been more volatile than other securities, especially over the short term.

Healthcare Sector Risk

Certain accounts may be more susceptible to risks that may affect companies in the health sciences sector. The value of such accounts may be more volatile than other accounts that do not similarly concentrate their investments. Furthermore, because many of the industries in the health sciences sector are subject to substantial government regulation, changes in applicable regulations could adversely affect companies in those industries. In addition, the comparative rapidity of product development and technological advancement in many areas of the sector may be reflected in greater volatility of the stocks of companies operating in those areas.

Risks of Foreign Investment

Investing in foreign securities involves risks related to the political, social and economic conditions of foreign countries, particularly emerging market countries. These risks may include political instability, exchange control regulations, expropriation, lack of comprehensive information, national policies restricting foreign investment, currency fluctuations, less liquidity, undiversified and immature economic structures, inflation and rapid fluctuations in inflation, withholding or other taxes, and operational risks. There may be less stringent government supervision and oversight of foreign markets than in the United States. There may be less corporate financial information publicly available, less stringent investor protection and disclosure standards, and differing auditing and legal standards.

Investment in foreign currencies is subject to the risk that those currencies will decline in value relative to the U.S. dollar, or, in the case of hedged positions, that the U.S. dollar will decline relative to the currency being hedged. Currency rates in foreign countries may fluctuate significantly over short periods of time. A decline in the value of foreign currencies relative to the U.S. dollar will reduce the value of securities held by an account and denominated in those currencies. Foreign currencies also are subject to risks caused by inflation, interest rates, budget deficits and low savings rates, political factors and government controls.

Emerging Markets Risk

Certain accounts' performance will be influenced by political, social and economic factors affecting investments in emerging country issuers. Special risks associated with investments in emerging country issuers include exposure to currency fluctuations, less liquidity, less developed or less efficient trading markets, lack of comprehensive company information, political instability and differing auditing and legal standards. The securities of issuers located in emerging markets can be more volatile, than those of issuers in more mature economies.

Accounts investing in Emerging Markets may have significant exposure to one sector or industry and are impacted by sector risks (see above). Such accounts may invest heavily in issuers located in emerging countries such as Brazil, Russia, India and China, and therefore may be particularly exposed to the economies, industries, securities and currency markets of such countries, which may be adversely affected by protectionist trade policies, a slow U.S. economy, political and social instability, regional and global conflicts, natural disasters, terrorism and war, including actions that are contrary to the interests of the U.S.

Portfolio Turnover (Active Trading) Risk

Because FAM may engage in active trading of securities held in a client account, such client accounts may incur increased transaction costs and brokerage commissions, both of which can lower the actual return on an investment. Active trading may also increase short-term gains and losses, which may affect the taxes a client has to pay.

Risks Inherent in FAM's Investment Process

As a result of FAM's disciplined investment process, Portfolio Managers are likely to engage in active trading of portfolio securities. Accounts may incur increased transaction costs and brokerage commissions, both of which can lower the actual return on an investment. Active trading may also increase short-term gains and losses, which may affect the taxes a client has to pay.

Additional Risks Associated with Certain FAM Strategies

Some of the specific types of strategies FAM employs can create additional risks beyond those already discussed. Listed below are these strategies and a description of these additional risks.

The following risks apply to the Spectra, Dynamic Opportunities and Dynamic Return strategies:

Risks of Selling Securities Short

Certain accounts may sell securities short, which is the sale of a security the account does not own. The account arranges with a broker to borrow the security being sold short, and replaces the security by buying it at the current market price when it closes the short sale. If the price of the security sold short has increased since the time of the short sale, the account will incur a loss in addition to the costs associated with establishing, maintaining and closing out the short position. If the price of the security sold short has decreased since the time of the short sale, the account will experience a gain to the extent the difference in price is greater than these costs. A short sale creates the risk of a theoretically unlimited loss, in that the price of the underlying security could increase without limit. Furthermore, there can be no assurance that the security necessary to cover a short position will be available for purchase. Purchasing securities to close out the short position can itself cause the price of securities to rise further, thereby exacerbating the loss.

Risks of Levered Accounts

The cost of borrowing money to leverage may exceed the returns for the securities purchased, or securities purchased may actually go down in value; thus, an account's value can decrease more quickly than if the account had not borrowed.

Risks of Investing in Derivative Instruments

Certain accounts can invest in derivative instruments. FAM currently expects that the primary uses of derivatives will involve: (1) purchasing put and call options and selling (writing) covered put and call options, on securities and securities indexes, to increase gain, to hedge against the risk of unfavorable price movements in the underlying securities, or to provide diversification of risk, (2) entering into forward currency contracts to hedge the account's foreign currency exposure when it holds, or proposes to hold, non-U.S. dollar denominated securities, and (3) entering into total return swap contracts on securities or securities indexes to increase gain by obtaining short exposure to securities or securities indexes that FAM believes will underperform on a relative or absolute basis.

A small investment in derivatives could have a potentially large impact on an account's performance. When purchasing options, the account bears the risk that if the market value of the underlying security does not move to a level that would make exercise of the option profitable, the option will expire unexercised. When a covered call option written by the account is exercised, the account will not participate in any increase in the underlying security's value above the exercise price. When a put option written by the account is exercised, the account will be required to purchase the underlying security at a price in excess of its market value. Use of options on securities indexes is subject to the risk that trading in the options may be interrupted if trading in certain securities included in the index is interrupted, the risk that price movements in the account's portfolio securities may not correlate precisely with movements in the level of an index, and the risk that FAM may not predict correctly movements in the direction of a particular market or of the stock market generally. Because certain options may require settlement in cash, the account may be forced to liquidate portfolio securities to meet settlement obligations. Forward currency contracts are subject to currency exchange rate risks. All derivatives are subject to the risk of non-performance by the contract counterparty.

Focus Strategies

This risk applies to any FAM strategy with typically 50 or fewer holdings including the Focus Equity, Alger 25, Alger 35, Mid Cap Focus, Specialized Growth, Small Cap Focus, Global Focus, International Focus, and Emerging Markets strategies.

These strategies invest a substantial portion of their assets in a small number of issuers, and so may be more vulnerable to changes in the market value of a single issuer and more susceptible to risks associated with a single economic, political, or regulatory occurrence than a fund that has a higher number of holdings. At times, the performance of shares of particular companies will lag the performance of other sectors or the market as a whole. This risk is magnified when a strategy has a small number of holdings. Generally, the more broadly a strategy invests, the more it spreads its risks and potentially reduces the risk of loss and volatility.

Socially Responsible Strategy

This risk applies to the Responsible Investing strategy.

Accounts invested primarily utilizing socially responsible investment criteria may limit the number of available investment opportunities, and as a result, at times the accounts' returns may be less than those of accounts that are not subject to such special investment considerations. Moreover, companies that promote socially responsible programs may not perform as well as companies that do not pursue such goals.

Health Sciences Strategy

This risk applies to the Health Sciences strategy.

The value of accounts that invest a significant portion of their assets in the health sciences sector may be more volatile than that of accounts that do not similarly concentrate their investments. Accounts following such a strategy will be substantially more susceptible to the risks which affect companies in the health sciences sector.

(9) Disciplinary Information:

We do not believe that there have been any legal or disciplinary events that are material to a client's or a prospective client's evaluation of FAM's advisory business or the integrity of FAM's management that have occurred in the past ten years.

A complete description of all disciplinary events impacting FAM, its advisory personnel and affiliates can be found in Part 1 of FAM's Form ADV and FAC's Form BD and is available upon request. FAM's Form ADV Part 1 is also available on the SEC's website at the following link:

<https://www.adviserinfo.sec.gov/Firm/106750>

(10) Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations:

FAM is affiliated with FAC, a registered broker-dealer. FAC serves as the principal underwriter for the mutual funds advised by FAM and as a broker-dealer for securities trades placed on behalf of FAM clients. FAC does not conduct public brokerage business and substantially all of its transactions are for those FAM clients who authorize FAM to use FAC as a broker and provided that relevant regulations that govern their accounts allow it. From time to time, FAC, FAM, AGH, or AAI, or other affiliated persons may hold controlling positions in certain pooled investment vehicles, such that they are considered affiliates. Additionally, FAM is under common ownership with Weatherbie Capital, LLC, an investment adviser based in Boston, Massachusetts.

Please see the response to Item 12: Brokerage Practices for more complete information regarding FAC's brokerage practices. FAM is the investment adviser to The Alger Funds, The Alger Funds II, The Alger Portfolios, The Alger Institutional Funds, and Alger Global Growth Fund, each of which is a registered investment company. FAM is the investment manager for Alger Dynamic Return Fund, a privately offered pooled investment vehicle. FAM serves as the sub-Portfolio Manager for Alger SICAV, a publicly offered pooled investment vehicle registered in Luxembourg, other jurisdictions in the European Union, Switzerland, the United Kingdom, Japan, Korea, and Singapore. Not all sub-funds of the Alger SICAV are registered in these jurisdictions. FAM also serves as a sub-adviser to third-party registered investment companies, as well as a bank collective investment trust. From time to time, FAM, its affiliates or a related person ("Alger Affiliates") may own significant stakes in one or more of the above entities.

Alger Affiliates also have other direct and indirect interests in the equity markets, directly or through investments in pooled products in which accounts directly and indirectly invest.

Conflicts as a Result of FAM's Affiliates

Selection of Administrative and Other Service Providers

FAM may choose to (and currently does) have Alger Affiliates provide administrative services, shareholder services, brokerage and other account services to certain of its clients. While any such engagement should be on market terms, it will nevertheless result in greater benefit to FAM than hiring a similarly qualified unaffiliated service provider.

In connection with these services and subject to applicable law, Alger Affiliates, including FAM, may from time to time, and without notice to investors or clients, in-source or outsource certain processes or functions that it provides in its administrative or other capacities. Such in-sourcing or outsourcing may give rise to additional conflicts of interest, including which processes or functions to in-source or outsource, which entity to outsource to, and the fees charged by the Alger Affiliates or the third party. FAM maintains policies designed to mitigate the conflicts described in these paragraphs; however, such policies may not fully address situations described above.

Information FAM May Receive

FAM and its affiliates may have or be deemed to have access to the current status of certain markets, investments, and funds because of Alger Affiliates' activities. Alger Affiliates may therefore possess information which, if known to FAM, might cause FAM to seek to dispose of, retain, or increase interests in investments held by accounts, or acquire certain positions for the accounts. Moreover, FAM and its affiliates may come into possession of material, non-public information that would prohibit or otherwise limit its ability to trade on behalf of client accounts. A client not advised by FAM would not be subject to these restrictions. FAM maintains policies designed to mitigate the conflicts described in this paragraph; however, such policies may not fully address situations described above.

(11) Code of Ethics, Participation in Client Transactions and Personal Trading:

FAM maintains a Code of Ethics that establishes standards and procedures for detecting and preventing the abuse of fiduciary duties by persons with knowledge of recommended investments and investment restrictions of FAM's clients. In general, the fiduciary principles that govern personal investment activities reflect, at the minimum, the following:

- The duty at all times to place the interests of clients first,
- The requirement that all personal securities trades be conducted consistent with the Code of Ethics and in such a manner as to avoid any actual or potential conflict of interest or any abuse of a position of trust and responsibility, and
- The fundamental standard that one should not take advantage of their position.

Among other things, the Code of Ethics addresses disclosure of information regarding client transactions, and trading while in possession of material non-public information, and imposes obligations with respect to their personal securities trading by FAM personnel.

With respect to personal securities transactions, employees are generally required to pre-clear transactions and are required to submit duplicate confirmations and account statements to FAM's Compliance Department. Further, a FAM employee may not:

- Engage in a personal securities transaction within seven days of a trade made on behalf of an advisory client in the same security, subject to a de minimis limit
- Engage in a personal securities transaction in the same security that is recommended for transaction in client accounts within the next seven days, subject to a de minimis limit
- Engage in a personal securities transaction in their sector or industry of coverage (applies to Portfolio Managers, Traders and Analysts)
- Engage in excessive trading, including successive transactions in the same security
- Purchase and sell or sell and purchase a security within sixty days unless done so at a loss
- Purchase securities in an initial public offering
- Engage in short sales
- Invest in futures and options on an individual security
- Make an investment in a private placement (without prior approval)
- Serve on the board of directors of a publicly traded or private company without prior approval

The Code of Ethics will be provided to any client or prospective client upon request.

Interest in Client Transactions

A conflict of interest will exist to the extent that FAM recommends that its clients invest in securities in which one or more Alger Affiliates has a financial interest or position. Additionally, FAM has conflicts related to its management of client accounts alongside accounts (including FAM advised mutual funds) in which Alger Affiliates personnel have interests (collectively, the “Alger Affiliates Accounts”). For example, FAM and Alger Affiliates hold investments in certain investment companies or other publicly or privately offered pooled investment vehicles for which FAM acts as an investment adviser and from which FAM receives advisory, administration and/or distribution fees. FAM might recommend that its advisory clients purchase shares of such investment companies or other pooled vehicles.

Additionally, to the extent FAM or Alger Affiliates own a significant percentage of the outstanding shares of an investment company or the interests in a pooled investment vehicle, FAM may be deemed to control that entity, and may have enough shares to determine the outcome of any matters submitted for a shareholder vote. As noted above in Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations, the investment company or pooled investment vehicle may be precluded or limited in its ability to make certain investments, or participate in certain transactions because of the ownership interest of FAM or Alger Affiliates. Clients should be aware that FAM may be incented to make decisions for its own benefit or the benefit of an Alger Affiliate with respect to mutual funds and other investment products in which it or said Alger Affiliate owns significant stakes.

FAM considers these conflicts of interest when allocating investment opportunities and portfolio securities, selecting service providers or brokers, and establishing investment products, guidelines for the selection of share classes, sales incentives, and compensation practices. FAM has adopted numerous procedures in an attempt to limit or manage these conflicts of interest.

FAM or Alger Affiliates may invest in mutual funds or other pooled investment vehicles, and other equity or fixed-income securities that it recommends to its clients. The results achieved by Alger Affiliates proprietary accounts may differ from those achieved for other accounts. FAM may give advice, and take action, with respect to any current or future account or investment that may compete or conflict with the advice FAM may give to other accounts (or for its own account) including with respect to the return of the investment, the timing or nature of action relating to the investment or method of exiting the investment. For a more detailed discussion of FAM’s conflicts related to its affiliates, please see Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations.

Recommending, Purchasing, or Selling Securities for Clients that an Alger Affiliate May Purchase or Sell for its Own Account

Alger Affiliates may provide seed capital to, or own significant shares of, any of the registered investment companies, or other publicly or privately offered pooled investment vehicles that FAM advises or that its affiliates offer. These investments may be for the purposes of establishing a track record for a new vehicle or for hedging purposes. Such funding may also occur in a separate account maintained in the name of Alger Affiliates. As such, it is possible for securities held or traded in client accounts to be similarly held in Alger Affiliates' separate account(s) and an Alger Affiliate may purchase or sell for its own account securities at or about the same time that it recommends those securities to its clients.

Alger Affiliates consider these conflicts of interest when making investments. FAM has adopted numerous procedures in an attempt to limit or manage these conflicts of interest. These policies are discussed in more detail in Item 12: Brokerage Practices "Trade Allocation."

FAM may be deemed to be affiliated with certain pooled investment vehicles managed by Weatherbie Capital, LLC, and its affiliates may have a financial interest in separate accounts or pooled investment vehicles managed by Weatherbie Capital, LLC. These relationships could create conflicts of interest with clients with regard to simultaneous trading of securities, allocation of investment opportunities, or recommending securities in which an affiliate has a material financial interest, but FAM's accounts generally follow different strategies than those accounts, implemented independently by different investment personnel, and traded independently by different trading personnel.

(12) Brokerage Practices:

Most clients for whom FAM serves as adviser give FAM discretion as to the selection of brokers or dealers to effect securities transactions. FAM places securities trades with the overriding goal of seeking best execution, meaning the most favorable combination of price and execution. In seeking best execution, FAM evaluates a wide range of criteria including price, the broker-dealer's execution capability, facilities, positioning, ability to handle difficult trades, as well as elements such as timing and order size.

To the extent permitted by applicable law and if not prohibited by a client, FAM will direct a significant amount of the equity trades to FAC. It is anticipated that the commissions, brokerage fees, other fees, compensation or profits, rates, terms and conditions charged by FAC will be commercially reasonable, but will nonetheless be in FAM's and its affiliate's commercial interests and could have an adverse effect on the accounts. FAM has policies and procedures in place to prevent excessive trading, and FAM checks trades periodically to ensure that transactions are placed with the goal of receiving best execution.

Soft Dollars

FAM relies primarily on its own internal research to provide primary research in connection with buy and sell recommendations. However, FAM does acquire research services provided by a third party vendor, which it pays for with brokerage fees and commissions, sometimes referred to as "soft dollars." The services that FAM may receive include:

- Management meetings
- Conferences
- Research on specific industries
- Research on specific companies
- Macroeconomic analyses

- Analyses of national and international events and trends
- Evaluations of thinly traded securities
- Computerized trading screening techniques and securities ranking services
- General research services (i.e. Bloomberg, FactSet)

FAM may pay higher commissions for receipt of brokerage and research services in connection with securities trades that are consistent with the “safe harbor” provisions of Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act. This benefits FAM because it does not have to pay for the research, products, or services. Such benefit gives FAM an incentive to select a broker-dealer based on its interest in receiving the research, products, or services rather than on its clients’ interest in receiving the most favorable execution.

Research or other services obtained in this manner may be used in servicing any or all of the accounts. This includes accounts other than those that pay commissions to the broker providing soft dollar benefits. Therefore, such products and services may disproportionately benefit certain accounts to the extent that the commissions from such accounts are not used to purchase such services.

Neither the research services nor the amount of brokerage given to a particular broker-dealer are made through an arrangement or commitment that obligates FAM to pay selected broker-dealers for the services provided.

FAM has entered into certain commission sharing arrangements. A commission sharing arrangement allows FAM to aggregate commissions at a particular broker-dealer, and to direct that particular broker-dealer to pay various other broker-dealers from this pool of aggregate commissions for research and research services the firms have provided to FAM. These arrangements allow FAM to limit the broker-dealers it trades with, while maintaining valuable research relationships.

In certain cases, a research service may serve additional functions that are not related to the making of investment decisions (such as accounting, record keeping or other administrative matters). Where a product obtained with commissions has such a mixed use, FAM will make a good faith allocation of the cost of the product according to its use. FAM will not use soft dollars to pay for services that provide only administrative or other non-research assistance.

Directed Brokerage

FAM does not consider client referrals when it selects a broker-dealer for executing trades on behalf of the accounts it advises. Further, FAM’s procedures provide that no mutual fund advised by FAM may direct brokerage or any other payment to any broker in consideration of sales of shares of the Alger Family of Funds.

Separate account clients may, however, direct brokerage to a specific firm or firms of their choosing. Because trades directed to specific brokers may not be aggregated with larger trades, transaction costs and execution quality may be adversely impacted. FAM will generally place orders for clients that have given us full brokerage discretion first, then for clients that have requested a specific broker. If FAM places orders on behalf of clients who direct brokerage after it places other trades, this may negatively impact the price at which trades are completed for such clients.

Trade Aggregation

If FAM believes that the purchase or sale of a security is in the best interest of more than one account, it may (but is not obligated to) aggregate the orders to be sold or purchased to seek favorable execution or lower brokerage commissions. As a general practice, FAM may delay an order for one account to allow portfolio managers of other strategies to participate in the same trade being recommended by a portfolio manager who also serves as an analyst to a specific sector or industry (e.g., healthcare).

Aggregation of trades under this circumstance should, on average, decrease the costs of execution. In the event FAM aggregates a trade for participating accounts, the method of allocation will generally be determined prior to the trade execution. Although no specific method of allocation of trades is expected to be used, allocations are generally pro rata and if not, will be designed so as not to systematically and consciously favor or disfavor any account in the allocation of investment opportunities. The accounts aggregated may include registered and unregistered investment companies, Alger Affiliates Accounts, and separate accounts. Transaction costs will be shared by participants on a pro rata basis according to their allocations.

When trades are aggregated, prevailing trading activity frequently may make impossible the receipt of the same price or execution on the entire volume of securities purchased or sold. When this occurs, the various prices may be averaged, and a participating account will be charged or credited with the average price. Thus, the effect of the aggregation may operate on some occasions to the disadvantage of an individual account.

When orders are aggregated for execution, it is possible that Alger Affiliates will benefit from such trades, even in limited capacity situations. FAM maintains policies and procedures that it believes are reasonably designed to deal equitably with conflicts of interest that may arise in certain situations when purchase or sale orders for an account are aggregated for execution with orders for Alger Affiliates Accounts. For example, FAM may aggregate trades for its clients and affiliates in private placements pursuant to internally developed procedures. In such cases, FAM will only negotiate the price of such investments, and no other material terms of the offering, and will prepare a written allocation statement reflecting the allocation of the securities.

Trade Allocation

As FAM manages multiple client accounts, including Alger Affiliates, conflicts may arise as a result of how FAM allocates investment opportunities. In an effort to treat all clients reasonably in light of all factors relevant to managing an account, aggregated trades will generally be allocated pro rata among the accounts whenever possible. There are exceptions to this practice, however. Some of these exceptions are described below:

Unusual Market Conditions

During periods of unusual market conditions, FAM may deviate from its normal trade allocation practices. During such periods, FAM will seek to exercise a disciplined process for determining its actions to appropriately balance the interests of all accounts.

Availability of Investments

The availability of certain investments such as initial public offerings (“IPOs”) or private placements may be limited. In such cases, all accounts may not receive an allocation. As a result, the amount, timing, structuring or terms of an investment by one account may differ from, and performance of such account may be higher or lower than, other accounts.

FAM, as a general practice, allocates IPOs and other limited availability investments pro rata among eligible accounts where the portfolio manager seeks an allocation. An account or accounts may not receive an allocation because it lacks available cash, is restricted from making certain investments, the account pays a performance fee, the account is so large that the allocation is determined to be insignificant, or due to co-investment by Alger Affiliates. When a pro rata allocation of limited availability investments is not possible or is not appropriate, FAM considers numerous other factors to determine an appropriate allocation. These factors include:

- FAM’s good faith assessment of the best use of such limited opportunities relative to the investment objectives, investment limitations and requirements of the accounts
- Suitability requirements and the nature of the investment opportunity, including relative attractiveness of a security to different accounts
- Relative sizes of applicable accounts
- Impact on overall performance an allocation of such securities may have on an account
- Cash and liquidity considerations, including without limitation, availability of cash for investment
- Minimum denomination, minimum increments, de minimis threshold and round lot consideration
- Account investment horizons and guidelines
- Client-specific investment guidelines and restrictions
- An account’s risk tolerance and/or risk parameters
- Tax sensitivity of accounts
- Concentration of positions in an account
- Appropriateness of a security for the account given the benchmark and benchmark sensitivity of an account
- Use of the opportunity as a replacement for another security FAM believes to be attractive for an account or the availability of other appropriate investment opportunities
- Considerations related to giving a subset of accounts exposure to an industry
- Account turnover guidelines

In some circumstances, it is possible that the application of these factors may result in certain accounts receiving an allocation when other accounts do not. Moreover, accounts in which FAM and/or its employees (or of affiliates of FAM and their employees) have interests, may receive an allocation or an opportunity not allocated to other accounts.

Certain portfolio managers manage multiple strategies, which may impact how investments, including IPOs and secondary offerings, are allocated across such strategies.

Portfolio managers who manage multiple strategies exercise investment discretion over each strategy on an individualized basis and therefore may allocate investments (including IPOs and secondary offerings) in a different manner for each strategy. Considerations for such different allocations, include, but are not limited to, when an allocation to a particular strategy results in an insignificant investment, different investment policies and objectives of one strategy versus another; as well as the implementation of strategy objectives such as sector or industry weightings. As a result of such allocations, there will be instances when client accounts within a strategy managed by the same portfolio manager do not participate in an investment that is allocated among clients invested in another strategy managed by the same portfolio manager. For example, it is generally the case that investment strategies with larger AUM do not participate in allocations of IPOs and secondary offerings as the allocation of limited shares will result in the strategy receiving insignificant amounts of shares to allocate across strategies. Such investment decisions may result in a loss of investment opportunity for clients that may otherwise have been suited to invest in such offerings.

Please visit www.alger.com for a current list of portfolio managers by strategy as well as strategy AUM.

Differing Guidelines, Objectives and Time Horizons

Because accounts are managed according to different strategies and individual client guidelines, certain accounts may not be able to participate in a transaction considered by FAM.

Actions taken by one account could affect others. For example, in the event that withdrawals of capital result in one account selling securities, this could result in securities of the same issuer falling in value, which could have a material adverse effect on the performance of other accounts that do not sell such positions.

Alger Affiliates may also develop and implement new strategies, which may not be employed in all accounts or pro rata among the accounts where they are employed, even if the strategy is consistent with the objectives of all accounts. Alger Affiliates may make decisions based on such factors as strategic fit and other portfolio management considerations, including:

- An account's capacity for such strategy
- The liquidity of the strategy and its underlying instruments
- The account's liquidity
- The business risk of the strategy relative to the account's overall portfolio make-up
- The effectiveness of, or return expectations from, the strategy for the account
- Any other factors Alger Affiliates deem relevant in their sole discretion

For example, such a determination may, but will not necessarily, include consideration of the fact that a particular strategy will not have a meaningful impact on an account given the overall size of the account, the limited availability of opportunities in the strategy and the availability of other strategies for the account.

For ease of management, FAM may group accounts with similar guidelines together for portfolio management purposes. As a result, an account may not invest in certain securities that its guidelines would allow because other similar accounts restrict such holdings. This could affect the performance of the account.

FAM currently manages or advises numerous accounts and these accounts may have or will have investment objectives that are identical or substantially similar to other accounts; however, accounts having identical or substantially similar investment objectives may not have identical or substantially similar investment portfolios. Differing investment portfolios can be expected to result from several factors, including, without limitation, the following: different investment decisions made by the different portfolio managers assigned to the accounts; regulatory constraints that apply to certain accounts but not to others; investment constraints imposed by the client; and the amount of cash available for investment at certain times. As a result of factors such as these, accounts may have a different investment portfolio (and, as a result, different performance results) from other accounts even though the accounts have identical or substantially similar investment objectives. Therefore, it is expected that the accounts will have different investment portfolios resulting from different investment decisions made by their respective portfolio managers.

Conflicts Related to Timing of Transactions

When FAM implements a portfolio decision or strategy for an account ahead of, or contemporaneously with, similar portfolio decisions or strategies for another account, market impact, liquidity constraints, or other factors could result in the second account receiving less favorable trading results. The costs of implementing such portfolio decisions or strategies could be increased or the other account could otherwise be disadvantaged. FAM may, in certain cases, implement internal policies and procedures designed to limit such consequences to the accounts, which may cause an account to be unable to engage in certain activities, including purchasing or disposing of securities, when it might otherwise be desirable for it to do so.

Moreover, each account is managed independently of other accounts. Given the independence in the implementation of advice to these accounts, there can be no warranty that such investment advice will be implemented simultaneously. FAM will use reasonable efforts to procure timely execution. It is possible that prior execution for or on behalf of an account could adversely affect the prices and availability of the securities and instruments in which other accounts invest. In other words, an account, by trading first, may increase the price or decrease the availability of a security to a second account.

In some instances, internal policies designed to facilitate trade aggregation may result in delays in placing trades, which may adversely affect trade execution. For example, a purchase for a particular account may be held while other portfolio managers are considering whether to make the same transaction for other accounts. Differences in allocations will affect the performance of the accounts.

Cross Transactions

From time to time and for a variety of reasons, certain FAM accounts may buy or sell positions in a particular security while another account is undertaking the opposite strategy, which could disadvantage some of the accounts. For example, FAM may manage an account on one side of a trade and another account on the other side of the trade (including an account in which Alger Affiliates may have a proprietary interest). In an effort to reduce any negative impact, and when permitted by applicable law and otherwise practical to do so, the accounts may enter into “cross transactions.” A cross transaction, or cross trade, occurs when FAM causes an account to buy securities from, or sell a security to, another client of FAM. FAM will ensure that any such cross transactions are effected on commercially reasonable market terms and in accordance with applicable law, including but not limited to FAM’s fiduciary duties to all accounts.

Certain Non-Discretionary Accounts

Some non-discretionary accounts receive trade instructions or model account allocations later than other accounts as a result of bespoke arrangements with particular clients.

Wrap Programs

Wrap accounts generally follow a distinct trading process from other accounts. Portfolio Manager(s) of FAM’s strategies continuously evaluate investment opportunities and make buy and sell recommendations. Such recommendations are provided simultaneously to FAM’s accounts and wrap accounts but are reviewed and implemented separately for the purposes of implementing buy and sell recommendations for wrap accounts given the considerations and constraints that exist in such wrap accounts. These considerations include, security type constraints (foreign securities, private placements, IPOs), trade and position size, cash flows, holding periods, and the ability of a sponsor to implement a trade. In order to limit the frequency of smaller sized trades for the wrap program accounts, when compared with other accounts, FAM has implemented trade size requirements on wrap program trades. These limitations will vary depending on the FAM strategy. Once determined, wrap trades are reviewed to ensure they are compliant with the specific wrap strategy and/or account guidelines. The trades are then submitted once per day to the various wrap sponsors according to a randomly selected rotation. As a result of this trading process, FAM typically takes more time to review and implement recommended transactions for wrap accounts; and therefore, wrap accounts generally trade after separate and fund accounts.

(13) Review of Accounts:

FAM’s Portfolio Managers, Compliance team and Institutional Sales and Service team review each client’s portfolio guidelines when the account is opened, and if changes are made. Portfolio Managers work closely with FAM’s traders to seek to adhere to client guidelines when making security selection decisions.

FAM’s Compliance Department regularly reviews and evaluates accounts for compliance with each client’s investment objectives, policies and restrictions using an automated compliance monitoring system. Prior to execution, portfolio trades pass through real-time compliance checks that test the trade against account guidelines. Post-trade and end of day reports are also monitored daily. Certain guidelines which cannot be automated are reviewed manually; the frequency of these checks depends on the perceived risk of violation.

All accounts are also reviewed by the Client Administration Team for the purpose of reconciling FAM's records with those of the account's custodian. Cash and portfolio holdings are reconciled by the Client Administration Team on a daily basis and the Client Administration Team prepares month-end separate account reconciliations (including cash, security positions, local market values, prices and accruals, where applicable) to a client's custodian bank account statement.

On a quarterly basis, each client generally receives a written report containing a portfolio listing showing cost and market value of all securities in the account, a detailed listing of all trades in the account for the period, a listing of all realized gains and losses, a listing of dividends and interest received by the account, a listing of all security purchases and security sales, and account and benchmark performance. Certain clients also receive historical performance reports on a monthly basis. Clients may also receive specialized reporting at their request.

(14) Client Referrals and Other Compensation:

Other Compensation

FAM does not receive any compensation from third parties relating to advisory services provided to its clients.

Compensation of Third Parties for Client Referrals

Referral Fees

FAM pays fees to financial intermediaries, advisers, and financial planners, among other individuals and entities, in return for referring potential clients. Alger Affiliates may also pay intermediaries who recommend FAM to their clients for separate account or wrap fee program services. Individual payment agreements vary, and some intermediaries may have a greater incentive to recommend FAM's services because the intermediary receives a higher fee as a result. These payments are made from FAM's advisory fees.

FAM may also pay a fee to pension and corporate consultants for certain services the consultants provide to FAM. These consultants may recommend FAM to these potential clients and may also advise current FAM clients. FAM may also pay Alger Affiliates for referring potential clients.

FAM currently has a relationship with a third-party firm to assist in sourcing business in certain East Asian countries.

Marketing Payments

Subject to applicable law, FAC may pay dealers and other financial intermediaries for, among other things, marketing the mutual funds, Alger Affiliates Accounts and other products. Such payments may relate to or result in the funds' and other investment products' inclusion on preferred or recommended fund lists or certain sales programs sponsored by the intermediaries. FAC may also participate in or partially sponsor industry and consultant sponsored conferences, and may pay for access to intermediaries' registered representatives or salespersons. FAC may also pay to assist in the training and education of intermediaries' salespersons.

Intangibles

Alger Affiliates may have board, advisory, brokerage, or other relationships with issuers, distributors, consultants and others. These persons or entities may have investments in the mutual funds or other investment products, and may recommend or distribute the mutual funds or other products. Alger Affiliates may make charitable contributions to institutions, including those that have relationships with clients, personnel of clients, dealers and other financial intermediaries and/or their registered representatives, and pension consultants.

As a result of the relationships and arrangements described in the preceding paragraphs, consultants, distributors, and other parties may have conflicts associated with their promotion of the mutual funds or other investment products or other dealings that create incentives for them to promote the mutual funds or other products or certain portfolio transactions.

(15) Custody:

FAM does not have actual custody of client assets. However, because it has a related person that serves as general partner of a pooled investment vehicle, and because it has the authority to collect its fees from certain client accounts, it may be deemed to have custody of the assets in those vehicles and accounts. Clients will receive account statements from both FAM and their custodians. Clients should review these statements carefully, and compare them to each other.

(16) Investment Discretion:

FAM generally has the authority to make investment determinations on behalf of its clients. Such authority is generally set forth in the investment advisory agreement between FAM and its clients. As noted in Item 4: Advisory Business above, certain clients limit FAM's discretionary authority over their account.

Some clients or wrap program sponsors retain FAM to provide model portfolios, which they replicate for their clients' accounts. In these cases, FAM is not exercising investment discretion with respect to the account.

(17) Voting Client Securities:

Clients may grant authority to or withhold authority from FAM to vote proxies.

If a client withholds authority from FAM to vote its proxies, the client should make arrangements directly with its custodian to receive proxy statements. While a client who withholds authority may seek FAM's guidance in this regard, proxy issues are often time-sensitive and it may not be practical to request FAM's input.

If a client grants FAM authority to vote its proxies, FAM exercises its proxy voting authority generally by evaluating the recommendations of Institutional Shareholder Services Inc. ("ISS"). FAM has determined that ISS should apply its Socially Responsible Investment Proxy Voting Guidelines in providing such recommendations, as well as its Taft-Hartley U.S. Voting Guidelines in applicable circumstances. When issuing vote recommendations and casting proxy votes in accordance with its pre-determined proxy voting guidelines, ISS discloses any conflicts of interest it has with the issuer of such securities that are the subject of its recommendation. To the extent ISS has a material conflict of interest with the company whose proxies are at issue, it may recuse itself from voting proxies. In such cases, FAM instructs ISS how to vote. When ISS does not recuse itself, but still discloses a conflict, FAM reviews ISS's disclosure regarding such conflict to ensure adherence to the pre-determined proxy voting guidelines and in consideration with its clients' best interests. Moreover, FAM regularly considers the robustness of ISS's policies and procedures regarding its ability to (i) ensure that its proxy voting recommendations are based on current and accurate information and (ii) identify and address any conflicts of interest.

Notwithstanding such proxy voting policies and procedures, actual proxy voting decisions of FAM may have the effect of favoring the interests of certain clients or Alger Affiliates over others.

FAM maintains proxy statements received, records of its proxy voting policies and procedures (which are available upon client request and on FAM's website at <https://www.alger.com/AlgerDocuments/ProxyVotingPolicyandProcedures.pdf>), records of votes cast on behalf of each account, records of requests for proxy voting information, and any documents prepared that were material to making a voting decision.

Class Actions

In addition to voting rights with respect to securities held in our client portfolios, there may be other rights associated with those securities, including the right or opportunity to participate in class action, bankruptcy, or other litigation with respect to those securities. As a general matter, FAM participates in class action, bankruptcy settlement claims, or other litigation with respect to the issuers of securities held in the accounts of its separate account clients, unless otherwise mandated in an account's investment management agreement or otherwise agreed to. In addition, FAM will, at a client's request, assist clients and their agent(s) in determining their eligibility to participate in any given class action. With respect to corporate actions (such as an issuer's merger, tender offer, dividend distribution, etc.), FAM participates on behalf of clients who authorize the firm to do so, taking such action as the firm deems to be in the best interest of the portfolio. FAM uses ISS Securities Class Action Services for class action processing.
